"By capitalizing on the popularity of our car shows, I believe we can positively impact the fight against Alzheimer's disease," said Show Committee Chair Tony Mertes.

The event brings together two unique communities — car lovers of all ages and young professionals who play friendly but fierce flag football games around the country to inspire fundraising.

"We're all on one team when it comes to supporting our community—especially families like my own who are impacted by Alzheimer's," says Ashley Addison, Chair for RivALZ.

The free Cars and Caves Show runs the last Saturday of every month April through September from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. and Wednesday nights 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Each show benefits a Twin Cities non-profit. The next show is Saturday, July 28.

Show Car owners and spectators are encouraged to park on site and view hundreds of muscle, exotic, classic, custom and antique cars all in one place.

Besides music, prizes, and food for purchase, anyone is invited to tour some of the lavish garage condos or man caves on site.

"The show is a favorite among Southwest Metro visitors with its open-air setting and family friendly ambience," said Mertes.
